“ Not only did Mr. Thompson inspire generations of Boy Scouts, but generations of Girl Scouts too. He was so generous with Camp Palila and let us camp and canoe there as often as we wanted. I have such fond memories of him. My prayers are with his family. He was truly a great man.

“ I'll be honest: During my early days at Camp Palila, Big Iron scared the heck out of me. That scowl, that gruff exterior, that big gun on his hip. But there was something there that also made me want to be on this man's radar: I wanted to impress him, I wanted his respect. 40 years later and I still think of him often, am still grateful for his time and service. And am still a little scared of him. Rest in peace, Iron. You've definitely earned it.

“ When I was about 17 years old, Big Iron came to my house to discuss troop business. He came in his MHP cruiser so he could listen to his radio for dispatches and we would sit in the car and talk about pending camp-outs or other Troop 5 business. One day he came by and while we sat in the car, my little sister, Charlotte (Nabers), then age 8, came out to the carport storage room and got an orange drink out of the storage room. (She did not see us in the cruiser.) Big Iron turned on the blue lights and a short burst on the siren, got out of the car and told Charlotte she was under arrest for stealing the orange drink. She was speechless and just knew life was over. She tried to explain her way out of the predicament, and Big Iron finally gave in and told her he was kidding. I don't think she ever got over this one. Bill Tabor

“ Paul was a wonderful, Christian influence on so many young men and women. i really appreciate his willingness to serve in the Scouts and be there for my son, Chris, as he worked to get his Eagle Scout recognition. One of my proudest moments of my son and I am still so proud to say I am the mother of an Eagle Scout. Wouldn't have been possible without Big Iron!

“ One of my earliest memories of Mr. Thompson was at Camp Palila. I was so-o-o-o new to Scouting, I may not have even earned Tenderfoot yet. Parents of the other boys had picked them up, and Big Iron and I were outside of the Ranger's Cabin. He asked if I knew how to read a map & compass, to which I obviously answered "no". He took the time to help me understand the basics of map & compass ... and every Scout knows the first thing you do is "orient the map". I've thought many times how that is such a simple, appropriate, and comprehensive picture of Mr. Thompson and his life's work: to make sure that every boy orients his life properly ... to put God first, his family second, and his brothers in Scouting next. To walk wisely. To be slow to speak, slow to anger, and keep a smile on your face. And to give abundantly of yourself, not expecting to receive. Thank you for all that you did for all of us, Big Iron! "Softly falls the light of day, as our campfire fades away...."

“ Big Iron shaped and molded my life. Outside of my father he was the man I respected the most. Those trips to Philmont and National Jamboree and the summers at Palila, still are the most enjoyable time of my life. He made a difference in so many lives. A true example of a Christian man!!

“ Have been listening as so many have shared memories of Big Iron these last few days. The love that he had for young people and the impact he had on so many of our youth is beyond measure. He literally knew people in EVERY state they visited on their trips ! I loved talking with several of his Scouts and hearing them share their adventures, from canoeing on the Current River to the ultimate Boy Scout adventure at Philmont, that indeed helped turn boys into men. Good men. Men of God. Good Husbands. Good Fathers. Good Sons. Their lives were changed. And so this Mother says thank you, Paul Thompson - "Big Iron", for sharing your life and your wisdom with our boys. Fly High.....

“ Wayne Childress. Outside of my father no other man had a greater influence on my life than Mr. Big Iron Paul Thompson. I wonder how many young men's life he helped mold in the 50+ years he led the Scouts of Troop 5 Louisville MS. The stories are endless as well as the memories. Go rest high on that mountain. Till we meet again.

“ I served on the staff of Boy Scout Camp Palila in Louisville during the camp's final years and Mr. Thompson was living in the camp director's lodge. I remember helping him move out of the lodge when the camp closed, and how sad he was that Palila would exist no more. He became one of the most admired and respected men I have ever met in Scouting. He will be remembered by many.

“ Big Iron was a great example. He not only led us at Palila and Philmont but also to the foot of the cross. I'll never forget seeing him jog in his red long handles for his physical at Philmont. I still tell my kids about visiting BIT (Burnside Institute of Technology) and drinking sweet tea at his mom's after mowing the grass.

“ If the iron is blunt, and one does not sharpen the edge, he must use more strength, but wisdom helps one to succeed. - Ecclesiastes 10:10

If there is one word I can use to describe the man it would be wisdom. So as I was thinking about what I would say, I found this verse in Ecclesiastes that also had his nickname and thought it might be appropriate. As I read all of the wonderful memories that are being posted, the wisdom that this man imparted to those around him shines forth like the beacon that this man was in our community. My son and I are both recipients of this wisdom and our families have been blessed by it. God bless and comfort your family in this time and know that our prayers and thoughts are with you.

“ It was my privilege to go to Philmont with Big Iron as a Scout with my older brother Marshall Hollis as well as John Ed Carter from Troop 32 Vardaman and the 1966 contingency from Pushmataha Area Council. I later returned to Philmont under Big Iron's leadership as an assistant expedition leader with my younger brother Freddy Hollis from Troop 32. The saying that you "go to Philmont a boy and return a man" is true because you went with Big Iron. In addition to our Troop 32 Scoutmasters, who were my father Charles Hollis, David Blue and John Jasper Adams, Paul "Big Iron" Thompson was our true image of a man! “ I supposed it's enough just to say that I knew and was in so many ways defined by such a legend, knowing that's what he was to so many people. Ironically, to hear "Mama ain't here, and I don't care" is to be told that who and what you are is cared for more deeply than an 11-year-old kid can imagine.....

Memories? year after year..... trips to Camp Wilkes, Camp Seminole, the USS Alabama, the Current River in Missouri, National Jamboree, Philmont, Shiloh, Vicksburg, Sipsey, the local ever changing and evolving 'Permanent Camp-site', Jack Warner's cabin, and a few other places I may be leaving out. As memories go, these are some of the best made, and not easily lost.

Also not forgotten are the well-taught lessons in leadership, determination, respect, integrity, and other character traits that propel you successfully through life, and that are sadly beginning to disappear. What a tremendous privilege and blessing to have known Big Iron, and to have been given these things by him. He lived up to his great name, and then some.

“ I owe a great deal of thanks to Big Iron. He made a very significant positive influence on me in my boyhood -- probably second only to my dad. He taught me many things, not only hands-on scouting -- and manhood -- skills, but also about character: honesty, initiative, hard work, self-reliance, service, and Christian living.

Of my many memories of him, one that comes to mind at present is of the bus ride back from Mobile, AL. I had won the scavenger hunt on the USS Alabama and had collected my prize of a large bag full of candy. I was selfishly enjoying it by myself on the back of the bus. He was watching through the rearview mirror, and called me upfront. He told me that the candy prize was intended to serve as a test: would I share or not? I had not, at that point, but took the hint. Anyway, not many men would take such advantage of a bus ride to teach character lessons, but he did.

What a legacy. God did not make enough men like him.

“ There are many special people who God has placed on the paths of our childrens' lives. However, Paul, "Big Iron," Thompson is one of those giants who left an indelible footprint in the life of our son Trey Woodruff.

“ My prayers are with you at this time. Paul's passing is earth's loss and Heaven's gain. He truly was a developer of young men I cannot express my gratitude for the happy memories, kind words of encouragement and loving discipline (when it was necessary) that were representative of Paul Thompson. He influenced my "boys" in so many ways-- he helped my husband fulfill a childhood dream of becoming a Boy Scout leader and played a big part in helping my son develop his leadership abilities. From one grateful wife and mom, let me say, "Thank you, Paul Thompson". We need more Paul Thompsons to step up to the plate and help young men develop their God given potential. May your happy memories be a joy and comfort to you in the coming days

“ I'll never forget the trips to Shiloh Military Park in TN... I always loved seeing Big Iron getting the newbies excited about going through Egypt... Yup, I fell for that my first time too... He always loved seeing all the guys hike all the trails... I know, I hiked them all and when I was older, either in college or out on my own, I was assisting "Big Iron" on one of these trips as a "Unofficial" Assistant Scout Master and I remember him putting me in charge of the beginners trail... He never let me forget that morning what a crazy nut he thought I was for bringing along a lantern and flashlights.... but I was determined to let the new guys lead the way without telling them how, after all that's what he told me to do... You never know what could happen and I reminded him about "Being Prepared"... Well the hike that should have only taken about half a day, wound up with Big Iron and the crew driving the Scout bus all around the park, well after dark, looking for us, and yes he spotted the flashlights and lantern to find us! I will forever miss Big Iron. He was a huge influence in my life, he is a BIG reason I went into Law Enforcement... 35 years later still in it... To all who ever knew Paul or ever graced the "Troop-5 "Hut" under the many... many... years of leadership, grace, dedication, sacrifice, devotion and LOVE of Paul "Big Iron" Thompson know that he will be forever missed and forever RESPECTED! Rest Easy "Big Iron"... Go rest high on that mountain, son, your work on earth is done. Go to heaven a-shoutin', Love for the Father and the Son.

A developer of young men. I worked for "BIG IRON" in the trading post a number of years. He'd drive in at midnight and want to do inventory. It wasn't the inventory that mattered to him, but a young man being taught responsibility. His legacy spans generations and way beyond Louisville.

To the family, I extend my heart, for BIG IRON gave his heart to me and so many.
